Interior Restaurant Design

Located on the 51st floor of The Ritz-Carlton, Macau, Lai Heen, the highest Chinese restaurant in Macau, is led by Chinese Executive Chef, Jackie Ho Hon-sing. Renowned for its finest level in culinary artistry, Lai Heen's meticulously curated culinary journey enables it to take its place in the highly respected accolades for seven consecutive years between 2017 and 2023, including the one-star establishment from MICHELIN Guide Hong Kong and Macau, as well as the Best Restaurants Awards from T.Dining Hong Kong and Macau. Forbes Travel Guide has awarded Lai Heen with the glorious five-star rating for 2020-2023.

The finest level of craftsmanship is further illustrated through its unique interior design by Strickland, a design company based in Japan who has also designed The Ritz-Carlton Hotel in China and Malaysia. Strickland is known for incorporating local heritage and materials into its design, with handpicked art pieces to enhance the whole architectural style and atmosphere.

The designer's vision of blending Cantonese cuisine with Portuguese heritage can be seen from the blue earthenware along the corridor and the patterns of the Portuguese tiles on the wall – All aiming at bringing restaurant patrons back to Macau's ancient Chinese and Portuguese colonial past. At the entrance corridor, a featured waterfall welcomes guests with soothing sounds of water and lit-up waves, reminiscent of the old trading port of Macau. The corridor is decorated with intricate patterns hollowed out to decorate walls and ceramic vase chandeliers, creating a majestic and refined atmosphere.

The main dining area is carefully decorated with classic China vessels and decorations as well as blue glass pendants suspended from the four-meter high ceiling. When paired with the ceramic vase chandeliers, a sense of classic sophistication is portrayed. The walls are embellished with beautiful designs crafted from thousands of pieces of Azulejo ceramic tilework.

Named after different precious stones from ancient Chinese culture, the five private dining rooms are ideal for intimate and celebratory occasions, providing a truly exclusive dining venue in which to delight in the high culinary art of the hotel. Part of the main dining area are separated by movable sliding partition for flexible table arrangements.

Artistic Lighting Displays

Guests will discover interesting art displays all throughout Galaxy Macau™. The "Symphony of Lights", designed and installed by renowned Korean-American artist Soo Sunny Park for the JW Marriott Hotel Macau grand entrance, is one such example. Park is best known for transforming basic building materials, such as dry wall, insulation, and mesh, into sublime installations that highlight the interplay of light and form. Through her ingenious application of aesthetic design and refractions, the "Symphony of Lights" is strikingly beautiful, adding vibrant colors and shimmering sparkles to the hotel lobby.
